CHINESE LAW.

tains a long memorial from the Governor General of Shensi and Kansuh reporting the tripland conviction in a case of murder of a peculiarly atrocious description. The prisoner, a man of touching the right to the use of a centain burying ground. The prisoner's fother had died and his could had been placed on the disputed ground, and as the prisoner refused to remove it, a law suit was brought against him in which he was defeated and ordered by the Magistrate to find another place of interment. Smarting under the wrong treatment which he imagined he had suffered at the hands of his opponents, he watched his opportunity and with the help of some confederates he attacked and killed two of them, wounding some others. One of the two who were killed was his object antagonist and the instigator of the opposition which had been offered to his using the burying ground, but not satisfied with what they had done, he and his confederates proceeded to the dwelling house of the and brutally put to death his only son, a boy of tender years, with the arowed object of cutting off his posterity. As the three individuals who lost their lives were members of one-family, the case came within the special law which provides an extreme penalty for crimes of that description, and the prisoner has accordingly been condemned to suffer donth by the ling chilt process, a fate which need not excite much commiseration in view of the cold-blooded nature of his offence. But the panishment does not end here. The prisoner had a wife and also a son and daughter, both under age, and it is the way in which they are dealt with that forms the peculiar feature of the case wife is to be banished for penal servitude on the Other stocks remain unchanged. frontier, while the son is condemned to suffer mutilation and thereafter to be sent to serve as daughter, on the other hand, who was engaged to be married, is to be handed over to the family China Traders' Insurance Company's Sharesin question to be married when she comes of age, The fate of the son will strike moss people in accordance with the law, it will, doubtless, be carried out, though so for the sentence still awaits Imperial senction. It will not be supposed that me are apologists for such revolting treatmere vindictive cruelty which prompt a sentanco of this kind, nor is it the desire to keep class of servants. There is at the bottom a logical train of thought which, from a Chinese

The orime was | Hongkong and China Bakery Company, Limited one not merely against the living, but against the doad. Now, it is a well known principle of Chi- Chinese Imperial Loan of 1874-£109 Nominal. nose law-that punishment shall be as far as Chinese Imperial Loan of 1877-£107 Nominal; possible commensurate with or the equivalent Chinese Imperial Loan of 1878-2 percent prem. for the crime committed. A life for a life has Chinese Imperial Loan of 1881-3 per cent. prem. always been the domand in case of hemicide by foreigners, and, vice verse, the Chinese authorities have generally been willing to tendor one life for every victim lost on our side. With them the object of punishment is not to deter others, but there is supposed to be in/some may a debt due or a limbility incurred in the book of fate towards the family of the victim which can be paid only in kind. Until so paid, the manes of the deceased can never be appeared. The idea is even carried so far as to foster the belief that a Nemisis often bangs over a family for an unredressed wrong done by some of its members in a previous state of existence. If the equilibrium of destiny has once been upset no matter what length of time has slapsed, or what changes have taken place, it can only be righted by an atonement corresponding to the original crime, and sooner or later such atonement must be made. In this particular case the punishment, in pursuance of the above principle. must be such as will put the offender on a level with his victim and as the latter can have no lineal heirs to minister to his departed spirit no neither shall the former. Many other instances of the application of the principle of " equivalents" might be quoted from the criminal law; as for example a prisoner condemned to banishment or even death is sometimes pardoned altogether on the ground that he has an aged father or mother-dependant on his services, but if his orime has deprived another aged parent of the services of an only son, such a plea will no longer be effectual. And so in this case, if it !! had so happened that the deceased had another son left, the penalty of mutilation could not have been imposed, although all other bironustances Fo had been the same, but the son or sons would no have shared the banishment of the mother on the general ground that in hemous primes the in the guilt of the load.

As to the daughter, her children can never, under any circumstances, become heirs to her of father, so the principle does not apply to her case. Moreover she was betrothed and, there. fore practically belonged to shother family, and to deprive them of the right to claim her would be punishing the innucent. Had, she not been betrothed she would have shared in the banish. ment of her mother. The family property is confiscated for the benefit of the family of the Viotins - Shanghai Courley,

IMPERIAL QUARTO. NGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY.

WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN -PRONUNCIATION: An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the for CHEROO, NEWCHWANG, TIENTSIN, HANKOW, Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical hervice this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the mamerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both | FIHE 3/3 L. I. I. American Ship the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best displays the success of an attempt to make the and will have quick despatch. Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a ciearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore churacerized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Gilmour, Master, will load here for the above Chinese characters, and Modhurst's English Port, and will have quick despatch. and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst For Freight, apply to this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applithis work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of Hongkong, 16th February, 1882. the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives thereselves it explains subjects fally with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

It comprises upwards of two thousand large cunrto pages. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made to Purchasers of SIX or more Copies.
